EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS OF TERMS USED THROUGHOUT THE APPENDICES.

A. = Ancient: i.e. dedications of pre-Reformation date.*

Chap. = Chapelry.†

XVIII. = Eighteenth century: i.e. churches founded in the eighteenth century.

XIX.–1 = 1800–1850: i.e. churches founded in the first half of the nineteenth century.

XIX.–2 = 1850–1896: i.e. churches founded in the second half of the nineteenth century.

Extra, i.e. dedications recorded, but for some reason not counted in general total, as follows:—

(1) dd. = Double dedications: i.e. showing the number of dedications to a saint in combination with some other saint. All such dedications are counted in their combined form (for example, "SS. Mary and Modwen") under the heading "Double Dedications," and will be found in alphabetical order under the letter "D." Triple and fourfold dedications are placed immediately after the double dedications.

(2) Alt. = Alternative: i.e. additional dedication-names attaching to churches already counted to some other saint.

(3) Dem. = Demolished: i.e. churches traceable, but no longer extant.

Des. = Desecrated.

(* . . . *) = Combinations of two or more names placed within asterisks—thus: SS. John Baptist and Catherine—are not "genuine double dedications" (see vol. ii. p. 515), but have arisen accidentally, from the union, or consolidation, of separate parishes (see vol. ii. p. 507). For the exceptional treatment of the consolidated parishes found in the City of London, see vol. ii. p. 509.

S. and St.—For the sake of distinction, the abbreviation "S." alone is used for "Saint" when prefixed to a personal name, while "St." is used to indicate a place name. For example, "S. Hilary" stands for the bishop of that name; "St. Hilary" for the parish.

Use of Italics.—Italics are used to indicate cross references.

* In Appendix I., in order to save space, all dedications prior to the eighteenth century —including, therefore, the scanty examples of sixteenth and seventeenth-century dedications, (limited, be it observed, with scarcely an exception, to "Holy Trinity," "S. Saviour," and the saints of Scripture)—are grouped together under the one heading, "Ancient;" but in Appendix II. these sixteenth and seventeenth-century dedications have their exact dates assigned to them.

† The chapelries that have been specially entered under this heading—whether now made parochial or not—are those only whose dedications are of doubtful date. Chapelries are, properly speaking, consecrated buildings wanting in certain of the privileges which belong of right to the mother-churches on which they are dependent. From the circumstance of their subordinate position their dedication-names were less apt to come into prominence than those of the mother-churches (see vol. ii. p. 523), and consequently are too often altogether unknown. That many of these ancient chapelries have subsequently been made parochial tends rather to increase than to lessen the difficulty of tracing the history of the dedication; for, not infrequently, a new name has been bestowed upon an old site or structure, and it is difficult to be certain to what extent this practice has been carried. Except with this one object of indicating an uncertainty as to the date of the dedication, no distinction of any sort has been made in the Appendices between parish churches and chapelries, district churches, etc.
